THINGS WORTH PRESERVING.—First—The following extract from an oration by the historian Bancroft, delivered at New York, on the life and character of Abraham Lincoln. He said:

The few days have passed away since Abraham Lincoln stood in the flush of vigorous manhood to permit any attempt at an analysis of his character or an exposition of his career. We find it hard to believe that his large eyes, which in their softness and beauty expressed nothing but benevolence and gentleness, are closed in death; we almost look for the pleasant smile that brought out more vividly the earnest cast of his features, which were serious even to sadness. A few years ago he was a village attorney engaged in the support of a rising family, unknown to fame, scarcely named beyond his neighborhood; his administration made him the most conspicuous man in his country, and drew on him first the astonished gaze and then the respect and admiration of the world. Those who come after us will decide how much of the wonderful results of his public career is due to his own good common sense, his shrewd sagacity, readiness of wit, quick interpretation of the public mind, his rare combination of fixedness and pliancy; his steady tendency of purpose, how much to the American people, who, as he walked with them, side by side, inspired him with their own wisdom and energy; and how much to the overruling laws of the moral world, by which the selfishness of evil is made to defeat itself. But after every allowance, it will remain that members of the Government which preceded his Administration opened the gates to treason, and he closed them; that when he went to Washington the ground on which he trod shook under his feet, and he left the Republic on a solid foundation; that traitors had seized public forts and arsenals, and he recovered them for the United States, to whom they belonged; that the Capital, which he found the abode of slaves, is now the home only of the free; that the boundless public domain which was grasped at, and, in a great measure, held for the diffusion of slavery, is now irrevocably devoted to freedom; that then men talked a jargon of a balance of power in a republic between Slave States and Free States, and now the foolish words are blown away forever by the breath of Maryland, Missouri and Tennessee; that a terrible cloud of political heresy rose from the abyss threatening to hide the light of the sun, and under its darkness a rebellion was rising into undefinable proportions; now the atmosphere is purer than ever before, and the insurrection is vanishing away; the country is cast in another mould, and the gigantic system of wrong which had been the work of more than two centuries, is dashed down, we hope forever. And as to himself personally: he was then scoffed at by the proud as unfit for his station, and now against usage of later years, and in spite of numerous competitors he was the unbiased and the undoubted choice of the American people for a second term of service. Through all the mad business of treason he retained the sweetness of a most placable disposition; and the slaughter of myriads of the best on the battle field and the more terrible destruction of our men in captivity by the slow torture of exposure and starvation, had never been able to provoke him into harboring one vengeful feeling or one purpose of cruelty.

Oh, slow to smite and swift to spare,
  Gentle and Merciful and just!
Who, in the fear of God, did'st bear
  The sword of power—a nation's trust.

In sorrow by thy bier we stand,
  Amid the awe that hushes all,
And speak the anguish of a land
  That shook with horror at thy fall.

Thy task is done: the bond are free;
  We bear thee to an honored grave,
Whose noblest monument shall be
  The broken fetters of the slave.

Pure was thy life; its bloody close
  Hath placed thee with the sons of light,
Among the noble host of those
  Who perished in the cause of right.

SEARCHING THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.—The Washington Republican, after speaking of the important and startling revelations concerning the great conspiracy, which a partial search of that city had brought out, urges the necessity of a closer scrutiny than any yet made, and adds:

That it is in evidence that President Lincoln, Vice President Hamlin, the members of the Cabinet, General Grant, Chief Justice Chase and Speaker Colfax were marked as the victims of certain rebel conspirators and assassins there is little doubt; that the plot originated with the chief political rebels in Richmond; was planned in detail in Canada and was to be executed in this city, there is also no doubt. That secret meetings were held at the residence of Secessionists in this city to further the execution of this fiendish plot is well known.

The arrests already made of persons known to be parties to the murder of President Lincoln, and the facts thus far ascertained of the hellish purpose of the rebel assassins to strike from existence all the leading men of the National Government, thus leaving it without a legal head, and the reins of government to be seized by any erratic, ambitious General who might at the time be in the field at the head of an army—will, when all made known, startle our people and astound the world!

In view of the great good obtained by partial searches in this city, we reiterate our firm belief that a complete and thorough search of Washington would reveal facts quite as important as any yet ascertained, and possibly lead to the arrest of many bad men, not supposed to be in these pacts.

There are men and women walking our streets daily whose hearts are as bad as was that of the assassin Booth. Let them be arrested. They have no right to liberty under a Government that they despise and would destroy.

Secessionists should not be permitted to live in this city out of prison. We hope the Government will see to it.

The Coming Period of Repose

Prophets of ill among us have predicted that such a desire for excitement or worse still, such an appetite for blood would be generated by our great civil war as to render peace an impossible condition for America for years to come. It has been supposed by many that the moment the rebellion was crushed, the United States would be forced by the military character which its people has acquired, to engage at once in a foreign war. Men of restless spirit, and others intemperate of speech have been speculating on the probability, or even the necessity of a war with some great Power—if indeed, any could be found worthy, in their estimation, to cope with us. Some have talked of a war with England, insisting on the acquisition of Canada. Others have supposed that we should be immediately embroiled with France when our domestic troubles were at an end. Now it is not improbable that the Mexican question may so complicate our relations with France, that war may be the result. It is the determination of the people that the American doctrine of non-interference in the affairs of this continent by foreign Powers, shall be respected. Napoleon faithlessly took advantage of our civil strife to establish himself in Mexico—a piece of audacity for which he, and the puppet Maximilian, deserve to pay the penalty of humiliation. But even if war with France do ultimately ensue—an event which we deem inevitable unless Maximilian shall leave Mexico—some time must elapse before hostilities can begin. There will be the usual diplomatic chaffering and a complete exhaustion of remonstrances and protocols by both parties before throwing down the gage of battle. The conflict will not be precipitately entered into, but our Government will proceed with deliberation, and yet with firmness, endeavoring to avert war if possible, and only insisting that this menace of a monarchical government in Mexico shall be withdrawn.

The people of the United States have not been so changed that they have any ambitious fancy for war and conquest. The nation was very slow to take up arms, and its reluctance to engage in war was overcome only by unavoidable necessity. Every soldier in the ranks has at all times kept before his mind the sole object for which he has been fighting. With most this object has not been fame or personal glory. The struggle has been carried on simply to preserve our nationality. Hence no dreams of ambition have carried our people away. Nor does any reason exist why profound peace should not be welcomed at the earliest moment it can be attained. The nation desires to take rest after its severe toil. The soldiers who compose the army will be at once reabsorbed into society. At the close of the Mexican war the soldiers returned, and were at once lost in the vast throng of the people. So it will be now. Every man, before he engaged in the present struggle, had some occupation. The place he left is yet waiting for him. To their associations and employments will the citizen soldiers return. With avidity they will engage in their former pursuits. Society has nothing to fear from their influence, for they are still the same as they have ever been—[illegible] and peaceable American citizens.

What Europe did after that series of commotions which ended in 1815, America will, if permitted, be likely to do now. After the storms of war were over, each of the great Powers felt indisposed to renew the strife. So now, the United States, unless forced into war by some present menace, or through fear of future danger, will gladly enter upon an age of peace. There need be no fear that the nation will insist on forcing hostilities on some other Power merely for the sake of war, or only for the purpose of enjoying war's alarms.

National Currency in the South.—The rebellion has left the South without a currency and without a semblance of a monetary system. The specie of the Southern States was long ago sent to Europe to pay for munitions of war. The local banks are all destroyed. Bills which the "Confederate Government" emitted, are, of course, wholly worthless. The National currency is now rapidly finding its way into the South, and will supply a very pressing want in that portion of our country. National Banks are being established in all the chief cities. Millions of our currency will thus be absorbed. The effect of this wide circulation will be a considerable depletion of currency in the North, and a consequent increase of its value. The absorption of this money by the Southern States, affords an encouraging indication of the future stability of affairs in that quarter. When the people of the South are so situated that their financial prosperity depends on the perpetuity of the Government, they will be less likely to have any desire to repeat the revolutionary attempt which has so signally failed. As in the case of our notes, their entire system of economy and finance will be based upon the credit of the Government. Thus they will have an interest in preserving peace and order. They will see that it will accord with a true policy, for them to exert themselves to sustain the Government. When they are once made to understand that an enemy of the Government is an enemy of their individual interests, it will be impossible to allure them into acts of hostility. Sordid considerations alone may not in any case answer the best ends, but when motives of interest combine with sentiments of patriotism both are made stronger, and the best results accrue both to the individual and to the Government.

Fidelity to the Union.—The Copperhead papers see much in the political future to inspire them with hope. They say that the "Democracy" is soon to take the government into their hands, and that this result will be brought about by uniting the Northern wing of the party with the defeated traitors of the South. Of course, a party thus composed would be likely to sustain the Union. But the aforesaid Copperheads need give themselves no uneasiness about this union of parties. These Southern traitors are to be distrusted everywhere, as they have already been in Tennessee and Missouri, and their Northern brethren are not. It will be only through the undeserved favor of those voters which "Democrats" North and South have labored with equal energy to [illegible]. After [illegible] affiliate with rebels in order to acquire political supremacy, these shameless Democrats have the effrontery to insist that they desire the preservation of the Union. Satan has appeared on earth in many forms since he personated the great tempter eighteen hundred years ago, yet it may be doubted whether he ever before demeaned himself with such unseemly impudence as he has since his last appearance in the form of modern "Democracy."

Pat Malone says that "persons of intellectual culture and literary taste are the most determined supporters of his paper." Oh!

Letter from Grand Ronde

[illegible] Cove, May [illegible], 1865.

Eds. Oregonian:

On reaching this place from your city, we found that a great change had been effected in the general appearance of things since our departure some two years ago. This valley then seemed but little removed from its wild and natural state as described by Fremont in his travels, yet in the short space of two years, as if by magic, it has laid [illegible] the garb of [illegible] have sprung up [illegible] have been [illegible] everything [illegible] that appearance of thrift and prosperity characteristic to old established [illegible] of what has [illegible]. [illegible] this will [illegible] a new feature of profits derived from agricultural [illegible]. Taking into consideration the natural [illegible] and agricultural advantages of this valley in connection with its close proximity to the mines, it requires no prophet to foretell its favorable [illegible]. The prospective establishment [illegible] of trade on the [illegible] at the mouth of Grand Ronde river, and also the establishment of an improved road up [illegible] to this point, foreshadows a higher order of advantages above those already possessed by the favored occupants of this locality.

We have just returned from a flying visit to the Eagle Creek mines. Found times dull in the diggings owing to the scarcity of water. The placer diggings of the Eagle Creek [illegible] are quite limited, yet with a sufficiency of water they would [illegible] sufficiently extensive to constitute a flourishing camp for [illegible] years. Their specialty is quartz mining in this locality, is very promising. Leads rich in both gold and silver have already been discovered, and a mill is now on the way to test their quality. Mr. Joseph Norton, Noyes & Co., own the Champion ledge, which assays very rich on the surface. It has only been prospected to the depth of seven feet, and improves in quality as it increases in depth. The rock of this ledge is so rich in silver, that in exposing a small piece to the heat of a blacksmith's forge, that metal fusing runs out in promising quantities. If the theories do not have an important rival for quartz mining operations in the region of Eagle Creek, ere long, observation and practical demonstration, are not to be relied upon. W. S.

Recollections of President Lincoln.—A correspondent of the Boston Journal gives an account of a conversation with the late President from which it appears that he had a presentiment that he should not survive the close of the war. The writer says:

He may have looked for it from the hand of an assassin, but he felt sure that his life would end with the war long ago. He told me "that he was certain he should not outlast the rebellion." It was in last July. As you well remember, there was dissension then among the Republican leaders. Many of his best friends had deserted him and were talking of an opposition convention to nominate another candidate, and universal gloom was among the people. The North was tired of the war and supposed an honorable peace attainable. Lincoln knew it was not—that any peace at that time would be only disunion. Speaking of it he said: "I have faith in the people. They will not consent to disunion. The danger is, they are misled. Let them know the truth and the country is safe." He looked haggard and care worn, and further on in the interview, I remarked on his appearance, saying, "You are wearing yourself out with hard work." "I can't work less," he answered, "but it isn't that—work never troubled me. Things look badly, and I can't avoid anxiety. Personally, I care nothing about a re-election, but if our divisions defeat us, I fear for the country." When I suggested that right must eventually triumph—that I had never despaired of the result, he said: "Neither have I, but I may not live to see it. I feel a presentiment that I shall not outlast the rebellion. When it is over, my work will be done."

Proclamation by the President.—By Eastern papers we see that President Johnson has issued a proclamation bearing the date of May 9th, the tenor and purport of which is the following:

Whereas, Armed resistance to the authority of the Government in certain States heretofore declared to be in insurrection may be regarded as virtually at an end, and that the persons by whom that resistance, as well as the operation of insurgent cruisers were directed, are fugitives or captives; and whereas, it is understood that some of these cruisers are still infesting the high seas and others are preparing to capture, burn and destroy vessels of the United States: he enjoins all naval military and civil officers of the United States diligently to endeavor by all means to arrest said cruisers and bring them into port of the United States, in order that they may be prevented from committing further depredations on commerce, and that persons aboard them may no longer enjoy impunity to their crimes; and he further proclaims and declares that after a reasonable time shall elapse for the proclamation to become known in the ports of nations claiming to have been neutral, said insurgent armies and persons on board of them shall continue to receive hospitality in said ports, this Government will deem itself justified in refusing hospitality to public vessels of such nation in the ports of the United States, and in adopting such other measures as may be deemed advisable toward the vindication of the national sovereignty.

A Beautiful Tribute.—When the remains of our late President arrived in Chicago the people all bowed themselves in grief and heartfelt sorrow. The Hon. Schuyler Colfax accompanied the remains, and on Sunday evening he addressed a vast audience in Chicago, in terms of glowing eulogy of the honored dead. He said:

Abraham Lincoln was the only man living who could have stood in the breach between the leaders of the rebellion and the wrath of the country. There was a trust in him almost filial in its loving confidence that whatever he might resolve on would prove in the end for the best. The speaker referred to his intimate acquaintance with the President, and said he seemed wholly free from ill will. Attacked ever so sharply, he never answered railing with railing. Criticised ever so unjustly, he would give no word of reproof, but if he answered at all, would patiently seek to show that he stood on the rock of Right. Murdered, he lives—lives as the father of the faithful in these times that tried men's souls; lives in the hearts of the dark browed race he raised to freedom; lives with every circle that has given one to die as he did, for his country—lives with the glorious company of martyrs to liberty, justice and humanity. He leaves behind him a record that shows how honesty and principle lifted him from the humblest walks of the people, to the noblest station on the globe, and a name that shall brighten under the eye of history as the ages roll by. From the top of Fame's ladder he stepped to the sky.

Chase on Gen. Sherman.—The President of the Sherman Testimonial Fund in Ohio, has received the following letter from Chief Justice Chase:

Washington, April 29, 1865.

William G. Deshler, Treasurer Sherman Testimonial—My Dear Sir: Inclosed is a contribution to the Sherman Fund.

I take this moment for making it, because just now many seem disposed to forget his great deservings and remember only his recent convention with Johnston.

But that act, however regretted and disapproved, must not cancel in our memories or even obscure his splendid services.

His patriotism is no more doubtful than his courage. No man's achievements have contributed more to the grand triumph of Union and freedom over rebellion and slavery. His deeds are among the choicest treasures of our own State, as well as of our whole country. And we children of Ohio are bound especially and by the most sacred obligations to defend and guard the good name of every brave and loyal soldier. She has no braver or more loyal than Sherman.

Yours most truly,
S. P. Chase.

[illegible] the Chicago Convention.—It will be remembered that the Chicago Convention among other things declared that the war to put down the rebellion had proved a failure. It [illegible] declared also that a continuance of the Administration of Mr. Lincoln would [illegible] further [illegible] August [illegible] the foreign Copperhead placed by the Executive of the Chicago Committee, [illegible] in the political campaign, gave a fair interpretation of that part of its platform by his offers of large bets that if Mr. Lincoln was re-elected the war would continue at least four years longer—wagers, however, which he was careful never to close unless he saw where he could hedge. It is suggested now whether it would not be a good idea for anti-Administration "Democrats" to call the Chicago Convention together again for a reconsideration of their declaration of the failure of the war. As the Convention did not adjourn sine die the thing [illegible] is simple and easy.—Bulletin.

[illegible] that if they did not make helpless prisoners walk the plank, drowning them off the yard arm, or murder them in cold blood, there were no other acts of infamy from which they were exempt. Judge Lake's speech was a withering rebuke to the arrogance and insolence of the prisoners and their counsel.

The preliminary examination into the alleged attempted stealing of the steamer [illegible] concluded in the Police Court last evening, and the parties held to answer before the County Court with bail fixed at $2,000 each. The testimony elicited no new facts, but showed that the matter had been considerably talked over and the party had made several false starts [illegible]. Williams, Hungerford, Ewald, Bruce, Ward, Clark, Sherman, Thomas and Reynolds were held and Burns was discharged.

The Frank case is now being argued before the County Court, the testimony having been closed this morning. The case will go to the jury this evening.

The gathering of graduates of colleges and other institutions of learning, at Oakland yesterday, surpasses in numbers that of last year. The reunion proved to be just as pleasant and harmonious as that which one year ago afforded such social enjoyment. The Society of Associated Alumni of the Pacific coast, was duly organized, J. W. Dwinelle being elected President for the ensuing year.

Beecher's Sermon on the Death of Lincoln.—It will be remembered that Henry Ward Beecher was at Charleston at the time of the murder of President Lincoln. The first Sunday after his return home he addressed a sermon to an immense audience wherein he spoke of the life and character of the great departed, and of his unexampled services in the cause of freedom. He concluded his discourse with the following touching, and yet splendid peroration:

And now the martyr is moving in triumphal march, mightier than when alive. The nation rises up at every stage of his coming. Cities and States are his pall bearers, and the cannon speaks the hours with solemn progression. Dead, dead, dead, he yet speaketh! Is Washington dead?—Is Hampden dead? Is David dead? Is any man that was ever fit to live dead? Disenthralled of flesh, risen to the unobstructed sphere where passion never comes, he begins his illimitable work. His life is now grafted upon the infinite, and will be fruitful, as no earthly life can be. Pass on, thou that hast overcome! Your sorrows, Oh people, are his peans; your bells and bands and muffled drums sound triumph in his ears. Wail and weep here; God makes it echo joy and triumph there. Pass on! Four years ago, Oh Illinois, we took from thy midst an untried man and from among the people; we return him to you a mighty conqueror. Not thine any more, but the nation's; not ours, but the world's. Give him place, Oh ye prairies! In the midst of this great continent his dust shall rest a sacred treasure to myriads who shall pilgrim to that shrine to kindle anew their zeal and patriotism. Ye winds that move over the mighty places of the West, chant his requiem! Ye people, behold the martyr whose blood, as so many articulate words, pleads for fidelity, for law, for liberty!

Bank of British Columbia.—A branch of this bank will shortly be opened in Portland under the management of Mr. Edwin Russell. An establishment of this kind will, no doubt, be a great convenience to business men and to all who may desire exchange on places within the British dominions.

Canadian Sympathy.—The Toronto Leader is mourning for Booth, the assassin. It says the shooting of Booth was a cold blooded murder, and adds that he "died like one who loved his country dearly." The Canadians really seem to be in need of a little discipline.

[illegible] Boys.—We have before referred to [illegible] which [illegible] Oregon for the reformation [illegible] youths so occasionally [illegible] in this city [illegible] before the Courts charged with [illegible] of which would seem to be sufficient [illegible] in the custody of a keeper but whom [illegible] to imprison within the State Penitentiary [illegible] with hardened criminals, or even [illegible] jail to serve a time in meditation over [illegible] they are pursuing. That we have a [illegible] boys too wicked to be at large in a [illegible] vice among their youthful associates [illegible] and that they could be [illegible] society, is equally as well as [illegible] to do this latter, and rescue them from the [illegible] which naturally await them, when they [illegible] the length of their unlicensed course in [illegible] requires the assistance of State legislation [illegible] subject for comment in all circles, up [illegible] action is had in the matter. The [illegible] has an institution of this character [illegible] to be an eminently fit place for the [illegible] offenders, and a late inspection of [illegible] Sacramento gives to the world [illegible] of its practical working by the report [illegible] on the same. We extract: "The [illegible] School is by law intrusted to a Board [illegible]. I went with the Superintendent from [illegible] miles to the interior to the School [illegible] very neat and clean and were [illegible] taken care of than the majority of children [illegible] our public schools. During two or three [illegible] at the place, though the children [illegible] around the building, I did not hear a profane [illegible] from them. All the pupils, except some [illegible] who are detailed for work in the fields, [illegible] five days in the week six hours each day [illegible] the time those who are large enough are kept [illegible] employment around the yard or building [illegible] work in the fields, [illegible] however, more [illegible] in the week—the rest of the time they also [illegible] school. The branches there taught are similar [illegible] in our public schools. The acting Superintendent [illegible] with his family at the school, and [illegible] a deep interest in the welfare of those unfortunates [illegible] who are placed under his control. He is [illegible] very kind to them, yet has that firmness so [illegible] to the control of [illegible] who could not be controlled [illegible] Once every Sabbath all the pupils attend [illegible] in the chapel by some of the [illegible] from Marysville. The use of tobacco, and all [illegible] liquors, as well as the use of vulgar or [illegible] is strictly prohibited in the institution [illegible] at the school at this time thirty [illegible]. The building, when completed, will accommodate [illegible] hundred. One hundred acres of land belong [illegible] sixty of which is now covered with a [illegible] of barley and oats, and part of the rest is [illegible] for use at the school. It is an error [illegible] institution in the same light as a Penitentiary [illegible] It is nothing of the kind. It is simply a [illegible] must remain and submit to wholesome [illegible] regardless of their wishes in the matter." [illegible] satisfied that it was an excellent place [illegible] of indecorous running through [illegible] town, allowed to grow up, [illegible] for the [illegible] or gallows, could be reformed [illegible] Islands a similar school has been [illegible] an act of the recent legislature of the [illegible] the Board of Education for those [illegible] to erect a building and establish [illegible] school for boys, similar to the above, and [illegible] institution is just now being opened in [illegible] and the Gazette says the [illegible] Hawaiians are watching with much interest [illegible] in the right direction." It behooves Oregon [illegible] steps in the same "direction" with [illegible] and we hope the influential part of [illegible] in the matter at the [illegible] day.

[illegible]—The wanton destruction of trees [illegible] in the garden of Mr. Harvey Hodge, by [illegible] large in the streets of Portland, is [illegible] the most [illegible] in the city, that it is [illegible] can be properly pastured [illegible] and securely corralled at night. Mr. [illegible] at the corner of Madison and Jefferson [illegible] obliged to hide from view the shrubbery [illegible] yard, which would be ruined by cattle [illegible] by building a barricade of boards against [illegible] "We prefer diluted milk from an estate [illegible] our coffee and tea, rather than bear the [illegible] in the streets.

Many letters from the fair ones, [illegible] to be scattered from San Bernardino [illegible] to Olympia, Washington Territory, [illegible] breaks.

ATTEMPT AT BURGLARY.—Late on Monday [illegible] effort was made to rob a certain business [illegible] city, whose names it will not be prudent [illegible] this time, for reasons best known to us. Some [illegible] door of the premises made a rattling of keys [illegible] to obtain admittance, which awakened the [illegible] and they slipping out the back way over the [illegible] adjoining building, in half clad habiliments [illegible] alarm to a Policeman, who, after preparing [illegible] for the capture, accompanied the alarmed [illegible] premises, where they found and succeeded [illegible] L. N. [illegible] because he was so convulsed [illegible] that he could not make his escape.

[illegible]—The Umatilla Advertiser is surprised that [illegible] should be imported to Oregon, and thinks the [illegible] should rather export it. So we do export, to the [illegible] of not less than $200,000 annually, of fir, pine [illegible] by growth adapted to our latitude [illegible] imported is a finer quality [illegible] Yet, we think eventually, enough of [illegible] article of cedar will be grown [illegible] when the country becomes better developed [illegible] working of oak and cedar is now being put [illegible] city, a few miles west, which will find also [illegible] and be a source of revenue to its owners.

CITY ELECTION.—We publish yesterday [illegible] Union men, extensively signed, re- [illegible] at the Court House next Sat- [illegible] for the purpose of nominating candidates [illegible] city election. We hope to [illegible] well attended. A good ticket can be [illegible] men who have sustained the Govern- [illegible] its trials, and who are in all respects [illegible] the positions to be filled. Such a ticket [illegible] of the Union party.

ASTERISK, PL. [illegible]—There appears now to be the [illegible] of a new party in the Third Ward. The [illegible] They can stand it but [illegible] The following is a [illegible] of yesterday [illegible] of the [illegible] party.

MR. EDITOR:—We acknowledge that we have just a sentiment expressed by your paragraph of to-day, stating the issues of the approaching canvass in the Third Ward. We appreciate it. Yet we will certainly assist, while you are discussing the above momentous subject, that you bring a complete issue into the contest. We must not be deprived of the pleasure of listening to our [illegible] old friend the croaker, vulgarly called the frog. Sweet the voices, dulcet the tones of his choir. Now please don't restrain or deny us this pleasure. Oh, what a euphony, continuously swells, it is a lullaby so soothing; a cousin to Morpheus, a promoter of sleep. First when you will abolish what you will, we will [illegible] please but leave us the frogs. Oh [illegible]

A THIRD WARDER.

ANDREWS' HAWAIIAN DICTIONARY.—The publisher of the above valuable work has forwarded us a circular in reference to the same. The book comprises: A Dictionary of the Hawaiian language, with English definitions. About 15,500 Hawaiian words have been collected and rendered into English, a vocabulary of the more common English words rendered into Hawaiian, about 4,800 in number; a chronological table of events in Hawaiian history, a brief treatise on the structure of the Hawaiian and other Polynesian dialects. The printing of the work is now completed and the sheets are in the hands of the binder. It consists of 560 pages, octavo, and will make a volume about the size of Webster's counting-house dictionary. Will be sold at $5, bound in sheep; $6 bound in morocco, at Honolulu, at which place persons here can obtain a copy by addressing Henry M. Whitney.

THE DEATH PENALTY.—It is known that Horace Greeley has always been a strenuous opponent of the death penalty. His opinion of the impropriety of capital punishment in any case, and not a tenderness for traitors, causes him to assume the position which he occupies. In a late number of the Tribune he explains the principle he advocates, and closes with these remarks:

"On a single point, we insist on being better understood. Several have written us, protesting against 'sentimentality,' 'tenderness to criminals,' &c. They entirely mistake our position. It is in the interest not of the criminal but of the yet undepraved, that we resist penal inflictions that tend to barbarize the community. It is in the interest of human liberty that we resist all that tends to invest the defeated champions of slavery with the honors of martyrdom. We cannot well agree with those who hold that a great criminal escapes punishment unless the law takes his life or inflicts on him some kind of physical torture, for our respective stand points are not within hail of each other, but we can possibly make students of history and of human nature, [illegible] that no party triumphant in a great civil war, ever yet suffered from treating his vanquished [illegible] with too much lenity. The danger is all the other way, for there will always be a hundred voices crying 'Smite!' for every one which pleads 'Spare!' In fact, they who would slay [illegible] the one, only evince an uneasy consciousness that their side of the question cannot abide discussion. Better let all be fairly heard, and believe that they who 'bear the sword' in such a crisis, are most unlikely, even if unprompted to rigor, to 'bear it in vain.'"

BITTER ROOT VALLEY.—A correspondent of the Walla Walla Statesman, writing from Bitter Root Valley, May 18th, says:

"This valley is proving to be a splendid farming country, the soil being very fertile. We raise excellent potatoes, onions and vegetables of all kinds. The country is equally well adapted to grain growing. We raise finer wheat and more of it to the acre than any I have seen in this upper country. Heretofore the want of good mills to grind our wheat has been a great drawback to the valley, but that difficulty will soon be overcome, as there are three large grist mills in process of erection here. Messrs. Higgins, Worden & Co. are building a large grist and saw mill on Black Foot river, where there is quite a flourishing village springing up. Major John Owens has returned from the east and is completing his grist mill; and Mr. Hutchins, Indian Agent, is also building a mill.

Owing to the great demand last season for farm products of all kinds and the great number of miners that wintered here everything in the provision line is up to a pretty good price. Wheat is selling at $10 per bushel; flour, $40 per hundred; oats, $5 per bushel; potatoes, 10c per lb., and everything else in proportion. The winter here was not very severe, and very little stock died. The snow is yet about ten feet deep in the Coeur d'Alene mountains.

I am pleased to observe that the mail route is again opened, and, with the present contractors, we are satisfied that we will get our mail regularly. Without a mail we of this valley might as well be in China, for it affords our only means of communication with the lower country.

Umatilla is an excellent point. No one can doubt it to see the business look its people carry about with them.

A WORD TO SMOKERS.—'Tis not our intention to preach a reform against the growing and sociable use of the weed, for it is a luxurious comfort. What gentleman, we ask, old or young, who is addicted to this habit of enjoying himself behind a good Havana, particularly after a hearty meal, will dispute us. We speak from experience, for we often indulge in a good cigar ourselves, but what we wish to suggest is, try that justly popular fragrant, convenient and efficacious Dentifrice SOZODONT, just the thing after smoking, to remove instantly the unpleasant taste and odors attendant on the use of tobacco. 'Tis refreshingly agreeable, and leaves the mouth cool and sweet.

All Druggists sell it, price 75 cents per bottle.

THE FLORENCE

Sewing Machines

ARE NOW UNIVERSALLY ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE BY FAR

THE MOST SIMPLY CONSTRUCTED

Easily Managed,

HANDSOMELY FURNISHED

and Durable

FAMILY SEWING MACHINE,

NOW IN USE.

Possessing the Most Desirable Points of all other First-Class Machines, it Surpasses them by the Simplicity of its Construction, and the Ease and Facility with which it Performs a Greater Variety of Work than all other Machines Combined.

IT HEMS, FELLS, GATHERS, BRAIDS, QUILTS, [illegible] and Sews on a Ruffle at the same time. We claim for the FLORENCE the following advantages over any and all Sewing Machines:

1st. It makes four different stitches, the lock, knot, [illegible] and double knot, on one and the same Machine. Each stitch being alike on both sides of the fabric.

2d. It has the reversible feed motion, which enables the operator, by simply turning a thumb screw, to have the work run either to the right or left, to stay any part of the seam, or fasten the ends of seams, without turning the fabric.

3d. Changing the length of stitch, and from one kind of stitch to another, can readily be done while the Machine is in motion.

4th. Every stitch is perfect in itself, making the seam secure and uniform.

5th. It is almost noiseless and can be used where quiet is necessary.

6th. Its motions are all positive; there are no springs to get out of order, and its simplicity enables the most inexperienced to operate it.

7th. It will not oil the dress of the operator, as all its machinery is on the top of the table.

8th. It is the most rapid sewer in the world, making five stitches to each revolution.

9th. Its stitch is the wonder of all, because of its uniform elasticity, strength and beauty.

10th. It does the heaviest or finest work with equal facility, without change of tension or machinery.

11th. Every Machine has one of Jonch's patent hemmers attached, (the right to use which we control,) enabling the operator to turn any width of hem desired.

12th. There is no other Machine which will do so large a range of work as the FLORENCE.

13th. It does not require finer thread on the under than upper side.

14th. The needle is more easily adjusted than in any other Machine.

15th. It will sew across the heaviest seams or from the finest to the heaviest of cloth, without change of tension or breaking of thread.

16th. It is fully protected and licensed by Elias Howe, Jr., and his Associates, and by our own Letters Patent.

17th. To avoid the strain on the eyes, bent posture, close application and fatiguing care, heretofore necessary on a large portion of work done on Sewing Machines, we furnish each Machine with "Barnum's Self Sewer," which guides the work itself, and is of incalculable value, especially to inexperienced operators.

19th. We refrain from publishing the highly complimentary notices of the Press with which we have been favored, and place our Machine before the public, believing that its merits, on examination, will fully substantiate all that we have claimed for it, and justify the assertion we now make, that it is the best Sewing Machine in the world.

20th. We Warrant every Machine to be all that we claim for it, and will give a written warranty if required.

21st. Agents wanted in all the principal cities and towns on the Pacific Coast. With a small investment of capital, a profitable business can soon be established.

Tragic End of the Assassin—Another Account

From the N. Y. World we take the following account of the pursuit and capture of Booth:

WASHINGTON, April 27th.—John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, lies dead on a gunboat in the Potomac river in sight of this city. The tale of his capture and the manner of his death stand out in bold yet simple relief against the superhuman efforts which have been made by the Government and the people to secure for trial and swift punishment the author of a crime unparalleled in the history of this country.

ESCAPE OF THE ASSASSIN

On the night of the 14th of April, Wilkes Booth, after shooting the President in his box, vaulted on to the stage of Ford's Theater, and rushing past one or two persons behind the scenes, jumped into the alley in the rear of the theater, mounted a horse that was standing there bridled and saddled, and rode rapidly up the alley until he turned into another alley to the left and running at right angles with the one which he had just left and which communicated with F street. While passing into the street he was lost sight of by Colonel Stewart, of Washington, who had followed him from the orchestra chairs and stage of the theater. From that point commenced the great search for the assassin that resulted so successfully during the early hours of yesterday morning.

THE PURSUIT

A large detective force, together with numerous detachments of cavalry and infantry, were on Saturday the 15th immediately employed. For a few days the efforts seemed fruitless and unavailing, and the different heads of the respective detective forces were divided in opinion as to the manner and direction of Booth's escape. As the adjoining county of Prince George was scoured, the evidence began to multiply that Booth, in company of some accomplice, had passed over what is known as the Navy Yard Bridge, across the eastern branch of the Potomac, at the south eastern section of the city, before it was guarded by the troops after the alarm had been given of the assassination. The story that two men on horseback had been seen crossing the bridge a few minutes before eleven o'clock on the night of Friday, April 14th, was correct. Those men were Booth and Harrold.

Parties familiar with the counties of Prince George, Charles and St. Mary's gave the information to the proper authorities to the effect that Booth had spent much time in Charles county; that he had been in correspondence with people residing there; that it was known that nearly all of them were opponents of the Government and sympathizers with the rebellion, and that, as Secretary Stanton declared in a late bulletin, he would be harbored by that numerous and dangerous class of people. Colonel Baker's, and other detectives and the cavalry, therefore, directed their attention to the section named.

A CLEW

A little over a week ago they secured a clew that left no doubt of the way Booth was trying to escape. On Saturday morning, April 15th, after riding hard all night to about thirty or thirty five miles from Washington and near Bryantown, Charles county, Maryland, Booth, accompanied by Harrold, was taken to Dr. Mudd, living in that vicinity, to have one of his legs attended to, which they represented had either been badly bruised or fractured by being thrown or having fallen from a horse. He remained there some hours, his leg swelling up so that he could not wear a boot, but manifesting a great desire to push on toward the Potomac. It afterward appears that this fractured leg was caused by the jump from the box to the stage after firing the fatal shot, and not by an accident caused by his horse. Whether this Dr. Mudd knew what Booth had done or whether he had previous knowledge of what he intended to do is not known; but whether ignorant or not he did not give any information to any of our authorities of the circumstances named, though on that very Saturday afternoon his whole neighborhood was filled with the news of the President's assassination, and yet he remained silent. The detectives and cavalry hearing that two strangers had visited Dr. Mudd's house early on that morning proceeded there two or three days after and took the doctor and all his family into custody and brought them here, where they remain in prison. In the house was found the boot left there by Booth, and inside of the boot leg was found the name of Booth, written in ink by the maker. From there Colonel Baker's and Marshal Murray's detectives tracked Booth and Harrold toward the Potomac. They made arrests at certain places of people where the two villains were harbored by day and at night. At some portions of the chase the efficient officers were not more than an hour or two behind them. As no publicity has been given here to any arrests in Lower Maryland but that of Dr. Mudd, the names and circumstances of the others are properly omitted here. They only show that those assassins had everything arranged, and were aided in their escape in various ways by the rebel sympathizers so numerous in that quarter.

HOW THE POTOMAC WAS CROSSED

The officers, however, were confident that Booth and Harrold could not get across the Potomac. The gunboats patroled in the daytime within sight of each other, and at night used great Drummond lights to render the surface of the river almost as bright as day. Besides all of these precautions, it was known that the Potomac flotilla had destroyed all of the small boats on both shores of the Potomac, so as to prevent spies, deserters and blockade-runners from crossing either way. Now and then some man managed to hide a boat, but he was soon detected and the boat destroyed, and the owner generally arrested, in addition. However, in addition to all of these precautions Colonel Baker had some cavalry stationed on the Virginia side. They were landed at Belle Plain, in the mouth of Potomac creek, near Fredericksburg (Va.), a few nights ago, with instructions to look out for Booth or any suspicious persons on that side of the Potomac river. The result of this wise precaution is well known. In the meantime Booth and Harrold were making their way toward the Potomac. Either from the vigilance of the officers or because of Booth's fractured leg, and probably from both causes, their progress was slow. After they left Dr. Mudd's house at Bryantown, they were one week crossing the tributaries of the Great Wicomico river to the place called Swan Point, which is nearly opposite Port Royal, where they were captured, over on the Rappahannock river. While near Swan Point the detectives were very close on the heels of the fleeing men. Had they been familiar with the roads and swamps, and had they received greater aid from the inhabitants, it is believed that the fugitives could not have reached the Potomac river. It is believed that on last Sunday (23d), during the night, they crossed the Potomac in a canoe, for which they paid a very large sum to its owner to ferry them across. It is said that the ferryman is also arrested.

TO THE RAPPAHANNOCK

It is probable that on the Virginia side they entered one of the numerous creeks that empty from the Virginia shore, opposite Swan Point, into the Potomac, and rowed up until they struck the road leading directly to Port Royal, in Caroline county. It is evident that at this juncture of affairs they must have been met by rebel cavalry or guerrillas and furnished horses to the Rappahannock river, for Booth's leg was so badly injured that he could not walk. Before reaching this river or before crossing the Potomac Booth and Harrold were probably furnished suits of gray, in which disguise they hoped to pass as rebel deserters, prisoners or paroled men, and in which costumes they were dressed when surrounded in the barn.

After crossing the river to Port Royal they passed out on the road three miles leading from that place toward Bowling Green, in the same county of Caroline, and near the Fredericksburg Railroad. It appears that they were here joined by some one, the whole party stopping at the house of a man named Garrett, who had lately returned as a paroled prisoner from Lee's army. He also had a son present who had come with him from Lee's army. They say that when Booth and Harrold came to their house he used crutches. A party of four or five accompanied them, and spoke of Booth as a wounded Marylander on his way home, and that they wished to leave him there a short time, and would take him away by the 26th (yesterday). Booth limped somewhat, and walked on crutches about the place complaining of his ankle. He and Harrold resolutely took their meals at the house and both kept up appearances well.

HOW BOOTH TALKED OF THE ASSASSINATION

The news of the assassination of the President had early reached even that out of the way place, and one day at the dinner table the conversation turned on the assassination of the President, when Booth denounced the assassination in the severest terms, saying that there was no punishment severe enough for the perpetrator. At another time one said in Booth's presence that rewards amounting to two hundred thousand dollars had been offered for Booth, and that he would like to catch him, when Booth replied, "Yes, it would be a good haul, but the amount will doubtless soon be increased to five hundred thousand dollars."

THE GARRETTS

The two Garretts who lived in the place allege that they had no idea these parties, Booth and Harrold, were any other than what their friends represented themselves—paroled rebel soldiers on their way home. They also say that when the cavalry appeared in that neighborhood, and they found that they were looking for [illegible], the [illegible] to them that these men were in the place. In other words they assert that they are entirely innocent of giving the assassins any aid and comfort knowing them to be such.

THE PURSUERS

At Garrett's, a common country farm house, with the outbuildings of a barn and corn crib, we will leave them a few hours and come up to their pursuers on the Virginia side of the Potomac, where [illegible] a detachment of twenty six men of Company L of the Sixteenth New York cavalry, under command of Lieut. Dougherty, [illegible] of Colonel Baker's [illegible]. The cavalry, after leaving here, landed at Belle Plain in the night and immediately started out in pursuit of Booth and Harrold, having previously ascertained from a [illegible] man that they had crossed the river into Virginia at Swan Point in a small canoe hired by them [illegible] for three hundred dollars. The cavalry crossed the Rappahannock at Fredericksburg and moved down on the Bowling Green road and then over to Port Royal.

ON THE SCENT AT LAST

Here they obtained the first news of Booth on Tuesday evening from an old colored man, who stated that [illegible] in company with a rebel Captain had crossed the Rappahannock a short time previous, going in the direction of Bowling Green, and added that the Captain would probably be found at that place, as he was courting a young lady there. Going back to Bowling Green, the Captain was found at the hotel and taken into custody. From him it was ascertained that Booth and Harrold were at the house of John and William Garrett, three miles back toward Port Royal, and about a quarter of a mile from the road passed over by the cavalry.

AT BAY

Returning, they arrived at Garrett's house about three o'clock on the morning of the 26th (Wednesday). The cavalrymen being posted around it, Lieutenant [illegible] Baker, a brother of [illegible] Baker, and Lieutenant Conger, of Colonel Baker's force, the two detectives accompanying the cavalry, went to Garrett's house and obtained from one of the Garretts a reluctant confession that the criminals were in the barn. Going to the barn, Baker knocked on the door with the butt of his revolver, at the same time saying "Booth, we want you."

"Here I am," replied Booth, "but who are you—Confederates or Yankees?"

Lieutenant Baker informed him who he was and demanded his surrender, but met with a flat refusal. Quite a parley then ensued, Harrold at one time expressing a desire to surrender, but Booth told him he was a d—d coward to desert him now. Booth could see the party outside through the cracks of the barn, but they could only hear and not see him. He swore he would not be taken alive, and declared that he could kill five men and then kill himself should they attempt to break into the barn.

THE BARN ON FIRE

At last Lieutenant Baker, fearing that the guerrillas and paroled soldiers, with whom the country swarmed, might come to the rescue, posted the cavalrymen and going to one end of the barn, which was filled with hay, pulled some through the crack and lighted it. The flames ran up the cracks to the top of the hay mow, over which they quickly spread. When Booth first saw the fire he climbed up on the mow and vainly attempted to extinguish it. He then returned to his position on the floor between the two barn doors with his back against the hay mow and with two revolvers in his hands.

HARROLD SURRENDERS

Meanwhile the soldiers approached the barn, and Harrold started with his pistol to surrender. Booth, with terrible oaths, denounced his cowardice. Harrold, in return, implored Booth to give up. Booth then said, "You damned coward, leave your pistol. I will shoot you dead, you son of a ——." Just as the hay-mow cracked as if going to fall down Harrold dropped his arms and rushed out of the barn.

BOOTH PROPOSES TO FIGHT

It was so light from the blaze of the fire, that Booth could be seen, and those who were watching say he either made a move to kill himself, or one to escape. He then proposed to fight each man singly at thirty paces, and declared that the first who came near him would be shot. It became evident at this moment, five minutes past four yesterday morning, that Booth would kill himself, or kill any man that came near; that, in fact, he could not be taken alive.

THE ASSASSIN SHOT

Sergeant Boston Corbett, Company L, Sixteenth New York Cavalry, had a sight of Booth through the crack, and drawing his cavalry six-shooter fired. Booth fell over holding in each hand a six barreled revolver. Detective Conger and Baker, and Lieut. Dougherty and Sergt. Corbett, rushed into the barn and brought Booth out. The ball had entered the back of his neck, and passed entirely through his head. He was still conscious. Detective Baker laid him on the ground, and held his head in his lap.

"It's all up now, I am gone," he faintly articulated. Booth did not deny killing the President, but showed no sign of repentance. To Lieutenant Dougherty he said: "Tell my mother I died in defense of my country."

THE END

His death was not easy, but at three minutes past seven yesterday morning (April 26th) the assassin of Abraham Lincoln breathed his last in a country barnyard beneath the bright sky of the lovely Spring time. After Booth died the twenty six spectators of this last scene of the terrible tragedy procured an old cart and horse and started off.

TO WASHINGTON

Harrold was made to walk and after a short distance he objected and wanted to ride. A rope was then placed around his neck with a slip noose, and the other end tied to a cavalry saddle. He [illegible] to walk fast enough so that the rope should have a good deal of slack. On reaching Belle Plain, Detective Conger rode overland and reported at Alexandria to Colonel Baker. Booth's body and Harrold in irons were placed on the steamer Ide and brought to Washington at one o'clock this morning.

THE CREDIT OF THE CAPTURE.

The origin of the expedition which captured these men was with Col. L. C. Baker. He obtained a detail of Lieut. Dougherty, and his men from Gen. Hancock, and acting upon information which he received, sent them in the direction already stated. They were well supplied by Detectives Baker and Conger with photographs and their descriptions of Booth. To every one of the expedition, however, great praise is due. They all labored incessantly [illegible] half of the time [illegible], and they are the heroes in Washington to-day.

INCIDENTS

Sergeant Corbett was at the President's funeral a week ago from yesterday. In just seven days from that time he killed the President's murderer. Booth and Harrold were dressed like laborers. Harrold was otherwise not disguised much. Booth's moustache had been cut off apparently with scissors, and his beard allowed to grow, changing his appearance considerably. His hair had been cut somewhat shorter than he usually wore it. It is learned that Harrold joined Booth just after the latter left Ford's theater, and it is believed that he brought Booth's horse out. The body of Booth was taken from the steamer that came from Belle Plain and placed on the gunboat. It was wrapped in an old blanket and laid on a bench. The lips of the corpse are tightly compressed, and the blood has settled in the lower part of the face and neck. Otherwise the face is pale and wears a wild haggard look, indicating exposure to the elements and a rough time generally in his skulking flight. The hair is uncombed and soiled. When captured he was in dingy gray clothes, which was very dirty. It had evidently belonged to a rebel private soldier. No orders have yet been given as to what disposition will be made of the body. This afternoon Surgeon General Barnes, with an assistant, held an autopsy. Booth's leg was found to be fractured and not broken. The injury was received as he struck the stage at Ford's. When he jumped from the box his spur caught in the [illegible]. He [illegible] at Bryantown. Mary [illegible] Harrold took him to Dr. Mudd's [illegible] Lieut. Dougherty, who commanded the cavalry detachment, entered the service with the Seventy first New York Militia. After participating in the first battle of Bull Run he joined the Berdan Sharpshooters and afterwards entered the Sixteenth New York Cavalry, in which regiment he at different times has [illegible] at Culpepper, last fall, where [illegible] Lieutenant Colonel Baker's cavalry regiment, and Detective Baker is a brother of Col. Baker's and is an officer in his brother's regiment. On Booth's person were found four fancy revolvers, one Spencer carbine, one dagger with blood on it, believed to be the same one with which Major Rathburn was [illegible], $176 in greenbacks, and one sixty pound note on the Bank of Ontario, of Toronto, Canada, and a pocket diary.

SERGEANT BOSTON CORBETT,

Of the Sixteenth New York Cavalry who shot Booth, belongs in New York city. He is a religious enthusiast, who has made the character of Cromwell his study. He was born in England about thirty three years ago, and is by trade a hat finisher. About seven years ago, while in Boston, he experienced religion, and when baptized, assumed the name of the city where he was converted. Since then he has prayed for Divine instruction before taking human life, and says that he has always been [illegible]. He was once a prisoner at Andersonville, and [illegible] with sixteen others. [illegible] to last Sunday, [illegible] attended church here, and [illegible] of the President's assassin he was in the funeral procession of the President.

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing [illegible] of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. So it is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. Messrs. TILTON & McFARLAND,

Gentlemen: [illegible] made by Mr. Lillie. I was induced to purchase of him one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes"

On the 18th of February last a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the safe. After the fire the so-called safe was taken from the ruins, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, etc., their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire, faring, however, no better than ours.
Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed.) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr Gibbon's Dispensary.

617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among these those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated hospitals of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Cumb Place, Pad.; Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; Westminster Broad Sanctuary, Charring Cross, Agar street, Strand, London; Whitechapel road, Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited Doctors Acton of London, Parker of Birmingham, England, and Ricord of Paris, who are considered the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose authority is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from them their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

S[illegible] the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fœted breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating the disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, by Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter, or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

The only way is to call with [illegible] inquiry—it will only [illegible] and may save you from regrets.
